PATHWAYS FORUM READING LIST:

Far-right ecologies: what challenges for sustainability science?

Articles and books

Shehnoor Khurram (2025). Boko Haram in the Capitalocene. Available here

Noémi Gonda and Péter József Bori (2025). Energy justice without democracy? Energy transitions in the era of right-wing authoritarianism in Hungary. Available here

Balsa Lubarda (2024). The 'fake' virus and the 'not necessarily fake' climate change. Available here

Bernhard Forchtner, Martin Hultman, Kirsti M. Jylhä (2024). Still Heating: Unfolding a Typology of Climate Obstruction. Available here

Arthur Galamba and Brian Matthews (2021). Science education against the rise of fascist and authoritarian movements: towards the development of a pedagogy for democracy. Available here

Pınar Emine Dönmez and Anil Duman (2020). Marketisation of Academia and Authoritarian Governments: The Cases of Hungary and Turkey in Critical Perspective. Available here

Hande Paker (2017) Cosmopolitan Democracy Revisited in a World of Rising Populism, Deepening Polarization and Rampant Neoliberalism.

This have unpacked the challenges of rising racism, populism, and intolerance brought to light by such political developments as Brexit, Orban's referendum, Trump's election campaign, and the European response to the refugee crisis. They have also reflected on the increasing intractability of neoliberalism manifested especially through the commodification of services, enclosures of commons, extractive policies, and land grabs.

Noah Marschner (Hg.), Christoph Richter (Hg.), Janine Patz (Hg.), Axel Salheiser (Hg.)(2024) Contested Climate Justice - Challenged Democracy.

This international anthology is dedicated to the discourses, agitations and dynamics that have prevented, delayed, and slowed down, or even reversed, necessary transformation steps in global climate protection to this day. The book brings together perspectives from 12 different countries. It pays special attention to the interplay between climate protection policy, climate justice and democratic cohesion.